

A Voice from New Jersey—Guthrie for the Presidency.

the 28th ult., (a staunch national Democrat journal) we find the following excellent and forcible article in reference to the mention of the name of Hon. James Guthrie in connection with the next Presidency. It will afford the friends of the dis-

We are right glad to notice that this distinguished gentleman is mentioned so favorably in a number of Democratic Journals in various parts of the country.

After the field many months ago, and reflecting upon the peculiar position of the Democracy throughout the Union, the many vexed questions which were before us, and the various and antagonistic elements that threatened the harmony of our organization, it appeared very proper to our mind that the delegates should be asked to consider the success in the approaching Presidential struggle, must seek outside the ranks of life-long politicians and statesmen. Those who have been mixed up in the party strife of the last few years as leaders, stand all on one side or the other, and the internal dissensions have drawn through our midst. A nomination of any of these prominent men would excite the fiercest opposition and active opposition, or lukewarmness and apathy in some portion of our ranks. Harmony and unanimity would be impossible. We shall go into the contest on the outset with all that want of energy and zeal which is the result of a divided mind, and thus become a sure harbinger of a most disastrous defeat.

Now what we want is such an emergency nomination as will be acceptable to all. They shall be a guarantee for his political duration.

legality, the difficulties that appear to surround the nomination of any one of those agile leading politicians of the party, whose names have been mentioned, are not insuperable. The man who is party-worst at this crisis is a man whose sobriety will be fully equal to the duties of his high office, and the firmness of whose political integrity, honesty of principle and conduct, through all his past life.

Now, in James Guthrie, of Kentucky, the Democracy have, we conceive, the very man for the occasion. To me the strong and truthful language of one of his admirers—James Guthrie is a strong, practical and resolute man, with the calmness of a philosopher, the energy of a Hermitage. He is just the man for the times. There is nothing to prevent the North and the South from uniting on him; and his whole life has been a life of self-sacrifice and devotion; neither could he be betrayed or even unwisely influenced. In fact, he never disappoints any one, for however large the confidence his friends in winter or Here we have a growing tribute from one who has known him long, and has had opportunities to observe him in the most trying and the most severe ordeals by which the loftiest qualities of statesmanship can be tested. But independent of this tribute to his ability, which has been tested in the most trying and the most severe ordeals, there is also a tribute to his character, which is of much significance and weight; that eloquent testimony to the fact "that he is no politician, as has none of the arts of one. This most courteous and most generous of men, who has been the honest, high minded and generous men of his country. It takes us back to the earlier and better days of the Republic. It is just such a tribute to the character of a man, who is one of our political condition call loudly for the elevation of such men to high official positions.

The only office that Mr. Guthrie has ever been outside of the office of Secretary of the Treasury, to which he was called by General

But from the men of all parties—Union and seceder—had been no harm, which he had no right to return. I. We believe him to be a "first-rate" man. A first-rate ability—first rate in dignity of character and conduct—first rate in political and personal life. He is a man of the purity of constitutional principles, according to the rare had found that the most useful patriotism of that early day when patriotism was not an empty name. He acquired the reputation of being the "first-rate" Convention at Charleston, if it has an earnest aim to succeed, will place him at the head of the Democracy in the next Presidential campaign. We are satisfied he has arms and men to do more to unite the Democracy than any other could be presented.

SECOND ABOUT THE DECK OF CAMBRIDGE.—The London correspondent of the New York Times writes the following bit of scandal of the Duke of Cambridge, the uncle of Queen Victoria.

AS INDIAN DANCE.—Yesterday, near dusk, Winchelsea, now at the Juniors House, (C. St. John's street, near Pennsylvania) aroused the denizens of that quarter and the city with a genuine Indian dance, on the row platform, in front of the Juniors House, by means to listen to their monotonous but so pleasing inharmonious singing and shouting, and to see them "whirl about, about and jump" in the air, and to feel the heat of the occasion, suddenly dropped the heat and the excitement of the occasion, and to see that he had held up around his head, which act was so much to the surprise of the crowd, and the most of the female portion of the crowd standing gaping below. The color, and his brother red-skins, seemed to be the cause of the excitement, and the embarrassing incident of the entrance occurred—when by the tree, not being downed, was quite unexpectedly to the others not killed. The yab-yaka of the colored steel, as they rammed the ranch, ran clear and above the who-whos and yon-yons of the copper-colored brothers.—Washington

THE CASUALTY—TWO MEN KILLED.—On the instant, at a log-ramp, at James Graves, in the south-west at this place, two men were killed by the stump of a small chestnut tree some two-five feet high, while they and two others were engaged in carrying a log. The accident was occasioned by a gust of wind; and as it fell it struck West held one end of the handstick, mashing his head, and struck West, who was on the other side of the handstick, who was on the other side from West, breaking his neck—so killing both so dead, they scarcely moved. Two persons engaged in carrying a log, who were right in the escape of the lives was indeed narrow.—Escape (Miss.) Indian War.

val, a person disguised as the Emperor of France, walked down the streets with a scroll in his hand, on which were inscribed the "Treaties of 1815." At every stop the mimic Emperor stopped and tore a page from the book, scattering it to the ground in fragments. After some time, however, the Emperor interfered and put an end to the representation.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE NEW YORK.

New York, April 5.—The steamship New York,

from Southampton with dates to the 2nd ult., has arrived.

It has been determined to hold a Peace Congress

for the settlement of Italian affairs.

A large number of workmen had been held in Hyde Park to oppose the ministerial reform bill.

The Neapolitan exiles have gathered at Bristol.

At least 100,000 persons, who had gathered on the quays in the vicinity of the landing.

The Paris correspondence of the London Press

states that the Emperor, having been informed of the ultimate regulations of Austria, now desires to be immediately helped from his aggressive attitude. Another letter says that Austria and France appear more inclined towards a pacific solutionary policy, but the basis and extent of the discussion are not settled. Haage, London and Berlin are mentioned as likely places for this conference.

The Austrian papers caution their readers

against too much confidence in the peaceful results of the Congress, but it is very doubtful whether the Congress will be convoked.

The export of arms, gunpowder, and sulphur

from Austria to the Italian States is prohibited.

The London Morning Herald says that France

intends to protest against the construction of the fortifications at Lunenburg.

Cardinal Manning has again requested the immediate evacuation of Rome by the French troops.

The London Daily News says that the last Austrian circular is reported to have been written by

Prince Metternich.

The Italian House of Commons on Monday

night, Lord John Russell moved an amendment to the Reform bill, which he had given previously notice of.

The debate was adjourned till Tuesday night.

The London Times' city article says the anouncement of the Peace Congress caused an improvement in the funds, which would have been greater but for the fact that the Paris bourse

had not shown any decided recovery of confidence.

The steamship Canada arrived on the 21st

inst.

In London, corn had advanced 1s.

Advices from Australia one week later had been received. The mines continued to be prosperous.

India advices by the Bombay mail of the 21st

of February had been telegraphed to London.

The British Government has been dispersed by the English and the forts captured

without a blow.

Tania Tova was still at large.

Consul to Nicaragua.

PHILADELPHIA, April 5.—The Washington Correspondent of the New-York Herald says, that Ranalds, the newly appointed Consul at San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, left here to-day, with

dispatches to Commodore McClure, of the Home Squadron,

and Commodore Logg, of the Pacific Squadron,
